Hours Requested	Category - Record number of hours in each category that applies
	Category One – Clinical This category includes subject matter that is clinically applicable and related to the philosophy of chiropractic, or the science of clinical assessment and chiropractic diagnosis of the vertebral subluxation complex, treatment plans and the prevention of injury/disease as it relates directly to patients. However, this subject matter does not meet the criteria of Category Two, but rather is case based, anecdotal and/or undergoing scientific investigation. However, there must be an established “possibility” of success based on experience.
	Category Two – Scientific This category includes all conventional clinical sub-categories that are evidence based. In addition to the science of clinical assessment and chiropractic diagnosis of the vertebral subluxation complex, treatment plans and the prevention of injury/disease as it relates directly to patients, it also includes topics in veterinary and chiropractic science that are not specifically clinical in nature but consider the comprehensive range of the practice of animal chiropractic. This embraces but is not limited to topics related to public animal chiropractic practice, epidemiology, food safety, public health, animal welfare, antimicrobial stewardship “in-service” training for publically employed animal chiropractic professionals etc. Based on scientific principles, there must be an established “probability” of success that conforms to the professions accepted and scientifically supported standards of experimental design, data collection and analysis.
	Category 3 – Practice Management/ Professional Development This category includes subject matter that helps make animal chiropractic professionals more competent and capable in serving the public interest in the delivery of animal chiropractic services but which is not necessarily scientific or clinical in nature. It can include but may not be limited to: business management, regulatory compliance, jurisprudence, skills based training in instrumentation, medical records, software management, member wellness, the art of animal chiropractic and communication and professional ethics.

Check All That Apply	Method of Delivery The method(s) of delivery, regardless of the AVCA CE Category, shall be appropriate to the educational content, objective and purpose of the program and presented in an effective manner that will best benefit the audience. The method(s) of delivery should, where practical, encourage active participation and involvement on the part of the participating attendee.
	Seminar/ Lecture - A seminar/lecture is an “in person” or “face to face” program, where presenter(s) and attendees are in the same location and where the event takes place in “real time” i.e., same time frame for all participants.
	Lab - A Lab is a face to face program which allows the attendees to have hands-on experience, training and/or practice of the techniques being taught.
	Interactive-Distance (Web-based, Teleconference or Audio-Conference) - An Interactive program must include instant or asynchronous two way communication during online or audio presentations, webinars, or teleconferences.
	Non-Interactive-Distance (Online, Correspondence, Journal, Question Writing, or Other Self-Study) - An independent/self-study program that includes methods of delivery such as online courses; videos, DVDs, journal articles or other electronic transmissions or other correspondence programs.
